A HISTORY OF PINKERTON ACADEMY

In 1793, a seed was sown in the mind of one whose dealings with his fellowmen had long excited the admiration and respect of all who knew him.

A devout Londonderry Presbyterian, he had amassed an imposing fortune by traveling the area on foot, carrying goods to the country-folk, later opening the first store of domestic and foreign goods in Londonderry.

“O, Pinkerton, We Hail Thee . . . ”

*The man was Major John Pinkerton.
The seed was the idea for a permanent academy* in Londonderry, and he later transplanted this seed into the fertile soil where it has grown and flourished for 150 years as Pinkerton Academy.

The first manifestation of this seed, erected in 1815, was the white frame schoolhouse known to many as the Freshman Building, later named Mackenzie Hall, a sturdy trunk from which to grow future boughs.

With the growth of a nation, so grew our tree of knowledge until, in 1887, it became necessary to erect the Main Building on the site of the first.

Pinkerton Academy, 1867

Soon a farm was acquired on which agricultural students through the years, have gained practical experience in farming. Later in 1940, a fourth expansion was made as the late Reverend and Mrs. Henry Harrison Haynes made a gift of their home for the use of the Academy in the field of Home Economics.

“O, Pinkerton, We Hail Thee . . . ”

Hildreth Hall

Athletics play an important role in Pinkerton life for the Academy has sought to train the body as well as the mind.

It was for this reason that, in 1951, a fifth bough, in the form of the Shepard Field House, appeared on the site of Hildreth Hall, long a boarding house for Pinkerton students.

In this field, the Academy sustains a competitive history of which to be proud, enjoying the title of State Football Champion in the years 1956 and 1958, (the system of rating having been drawn up in 1951).

The Library

Previous to this time, Pinkerton displayed at least seven undefeated teams, including the famous team of 1907 that emerged victorious over Manchester Central. Basketball State Championship titles were won in five successful years, and six undefeated seasons were enjoyed. The girls, too, brought home honors of undefeated basketball teams in five victorious seasons.

The Farm, 1940

In 1959, still another bough appeared as the Saltmarsh Building, gift of Frank and Mamie Saltmarsh, spread its leafy folds over the new library and English Department. And just four years later, the building which has taken the name of our revered alumnus, Alan B. Shepard, Jr., housing an auditorium and cafeteria, as well as many modern classrooms, marked the final limb in the growth of Pinkerton, thus far.

Pinkerton Catalog, 1816

Through the years of growth and expansion, customs have developed, creeping as moss upon our tree and joining finally and inseparably with it as traditions are born. Some of the traditions now stand poignantly in the memories of only a few, while others have survived the test of time and are enjoyed and respected by Pinkerton students today.

Upon presentation, in 1906, of the John Pinkerton Memorial Plaque which bears that fine man's figure and guards the portals of the Main Building, the students began a ritual of rubbing "John's nose" for luck on examinations. You need only to see the plaque as it stands today, with nose polished shiny by generations of hopeful hands, to see how this ceremony has endured.

“O, Pinkerton, We Hail Thee . . . ”

Other traditions that may kindle fond memories in the hearts of many alumni are: daily chapel services, the peal of the tower bell ringing every morning once for each year of the school's operation, class banners that hang proudly in chapel, the Pinkerton Cane used to lead the proud graduates in Commencement Exercises and the apt titling of the girls' and boys' basements as the “Angels' Abode” and the “Devils' Den.”

And who could forget the sly and omniscient Crow, flying and informing over the Pinkerton Campus, or the day when the long awaited privilege of treading the exalted Senior Steps had finally come to pass.

Days that have held excitement for Pinkerton students through the years include: Initiation, the annual Freshman-Sophomore Football Game, the Junior and Senior Plays, Senior Girls and Boys Hockey Game, the Declamations and Essay Contests, the Junior Prom, the Senior Kid Party, Clean-up Day, Step-up Day, Field Day, the Senior Corn Roast and the Senior Howl, their last long revel before settling to the solemnity of graduation.

*For one hundred and fifty years,
Pinkerton's rich fruit,
its graduates,
has proceeded to enrich communities as well as nations, traveling to the four corners of the earth (and beyond) gaining world-wide respect and acclaim, and although the appearance of the academy has altered somewhat since its founding in 1814, the standards and expectations of its students have remained stalwart.*

FOREWORD

Our three years at Pinkerton reflect a proud history and echo the traditions of one hundred and fifty years. It is this history and these traditions that we are honored to record on the following pages, commemorating the sesquicentennial of Pinkerton Academy.

As we browse through our yearbook in the years to come, we will find, not only reminiscences of our own Academy days, but also a rich account of the birth and growth of all that we grew to love when we were a part of the wonderful world that is P. A.

Remembering the twenty-five years of service and guidance that you have given to Pinkerton students, we, the Class of 1964, dedicate this issue of the Critic to Ivah A. Hackler. Just as the Tower is a part of Pinkerton tradition, you are a part of Pinkerton life. Your example will always be representative of the standards and traditions of the Academy.

GUIDANCE

The guidance program is designed to help each student to understand and develop his special abilities and talents, and to recognize significant limitations. In that way, a student may be more successful in high school and in the years which lie ahead.

The guidance counselors help students in many ways: selecting their courses, making future plans, discovering aptitudes and interests, to mention only the more obvious examples. Counselors have been trained to help young people with their questions and problems. Students are scheduled for periodic interviews by their counselors, but a student may ask to meet his counselor at any time. In addition, our guidance workers are available for interviews with parents.

ENGLISH

It is in the English Department of Pinkerton Academy that the student learns to use his greatest asset, the English language. Through the study of grammar and public speaking, the written and spoken word become familiar tools. From the immortal words of Shakespeare to those of our own beloved Frost, the student meets English at its finest and develops an awareness and appreciation of the ideas and ideals which have enriched the lives and shaped the thoughts of mankind.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The purpose of the Social Studies Department is to acquaint the students with the people of the world and the forms of government. One of the bases of this study is a thorough analysis of our Constitution. Our comprehension of the theory and practice of democracy and its challenging ideologies is also essential. These combined factors contribute to the end product—an intelligent, conscientious citizen, prepared to utilize practically his knowledge to help solve our modern social, and political, and economic problems.

MATHEMATICS

The primary objective of the Math Department is to help develop the mind of the student. Our courses in General Math, Algebra I, Algebra II, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Advanced Math enable us to think and to work systematically by following a pattern of logical discourse. An important factor in Math is the student's realization that there exists a definite pattern in all mathematics, from theory to practical application. This very structure accounts for the continuity of our math studies.

LANGUAGE

A very essential part of the Pinkerton curriculum is the study of foreign languages. The Academy offers the students a choice of Latin, French or Spanish. This year the language department is teaching the audio-linguistic method by which the student learns to speak the words from a tape recording before he learns to spell or write them. A study of a foreign language is very valuable to the students.

SCIENCE

With the opening of the Alan Shepard Building, the science courses have taken on a new aspect. The many experiments conducted in the geology, biology, physics and chemistry classes are conducted to introduce the student to the broadening field of science. The new classrooms and fine laboratories have given Pinkerton Academy the facilities for a successful scientific curriculum.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

To succeed in the competitive business world one needs a solid commercial background of bookkeeping, office practice, typing, and shorthand.

With the training that each student receives at Pinkerton, he is ready to accept immediate employment upon his graduation or he has the essential foundation for his future if he decides to further his education.

AGRICULTURE

The Agricultural Department is enjoying several improvements. A new shop has been opened in which the boys learn practical woodworking and mechanical skills. In the near future a proposed greenhouse will offer landscaping and gardening. Farm skills and animal husbandry are still offered on the school's farm.

The Agricultural program is also being directed more toward allied occupations in order to adjust to the needs of the pupils and community.

HOME ECONOMICS

Every effort is being made, through the areas of family and community relationship, child growth, textiles, clothing, home decorating, housing, money and home management, food and nutrition, family welfare and consumer buying to provide a sound background of information for successful future homemakers.

ART

The art department, newly organized this year, is under the direction of Miss Brown. The students work in various mediums and techniques. Art history has been studied in order to understand the great artists more fully. The art program has given students a chance to express their talents and has uncovered many hidden abilities.

MUSIC

Growing proportionally to the school, the music department has enlarged in membership participation and topics presented. The Music Appreciation classes, as in previous years, have studied the growth and development of music from early times to the present. In growing, the department has added to the curriculum, the study of orchestration. Putting this knowledge to good use, the students have transposed and rewritten piano music for the band.

THE SALTMARSH LIBRARY

The Saltmarsh Library is considered a most valuable and versatile part of the Academy. Here source material for every subject, magazines, pamphlets, newspapers, displays, and a growing number of books are offered to the students. Due to these excellent facilities, Library attendance is high. The student body takes full advantage of the privilege of using the Library.

SCHOOL SECRETARY

The nerve center of the P.A. community is the main office, and transmitting and sorting all nerve impulses is our secretary, Mrs. Wheeler. A student can go to the office with a problem big or small, and be sure of being listened to sympathetically. How would many of our more absent-minded students exist without the lost and found department? The majority of students would be oblivious to many important events if notices were not circulated. The school certainly would not function successfully without the office or Mrs. Wheeler.

Despite the many changes that have taken place at the Academy since its founding in 1814, The Pinkerton Seniors basically have remained the same.

The approach of graduation each year creates a deeper appreciation for all that the Academy represents and develops an ageless mixture of pride and poignancy that is, both old and very new.

Our three years reflect a proud history

Pinkerton Academy! It didn't seem possible! We, the class of '64, were really going to be a part of the wonderful school which had seemed so austere.

When we first arrived as the class of '64, we were a heterogeneous mixture of confused and horrified sophomores. Maturity had not become a part of our mien.

Choosing our class cheer and class colors came first in our P. A. careers, and soon we were well represented with our banner of lilac and white hanging with the others in Chapel. In a few weeks we had become well known around the campus as the "mighty class of '64."

In October we elected officers, Tom Sumner, President; Sue Indoccio, Vice-president; Bruce Clay, Treasurer; Mary Mayers, Secretary; and Student Council, Steve Broes and Jane Pelletier to lead us through our first year.

Although Initiation saw us dressed as "Dopey's" and "Lulu's," we realized we were finally becoming a part of our school and its activities.

Our Sophomore Reception was the last one held in the Chapel. The fact that it was presented to us by the Seniors, just after we had been initiated by the Juniors, made us feel we were being drawn even deeper into the warm meaningful traditions of P. A.

In June we were proud to have our class so well represented at Graduation. Ann Reardon received a Latin Award, and Sue Levesque and Alwine Stock were presented Elias Haskett Derby Awards for the high scholastic averages they had attained during the year.

Our first year was an exciting one. From the day we arrived, until '64 week, until Ed Beauregard became our first Letterman, until Sandy Weston become our first varsity cheerleader, and finally until Class Day when we shouted our class cheer, we became an integral part of the life of P. A.

As our second year of Pinkerton began, we found ourselves in the long awaited roles of upperclassmen. Our delusions of grandeur were heightened even more because this year there were two classes of underclassmen. Freshmen had been added to the P. A. campus.

Anticipating a busy year, we decided to start working early. We were the first class to elect our class officers. They were President, Tom Sumner; Vice-president, Janet Davis; Treasurer, Steve Broes; Secretary, Sue Indoccio; Student Council, Jane Hamilton and Ed Beauregard.

Soon after the election, the whole class participated in initiating the Freshmen and Sophomores. On the designated day in October, the underclassmen walked around campus wearing crazy headgear and signs indicating their class. The boys strutted conspicuously along wearing women's hats or decorated bathing caps, jewelry, and make-up. The girls emerged with decorated nylon stockings pulled down over their heads. The day of jesting was our way of extending the warmth of our friendship to the younger members of P. A.

After much consternation over what color and what size would be best, we ordered our class rings in November. When they finally arrived, the members of the Junior class were kept busy polishing their beloved rings.

The Grinnell School gym was transformed one night in early February into a garden of oriental loveliness, complete with an arched bridge and a deep purple sky. Beyond the vine-covered entrance lay a Chinese tea room where fortune cookies and refreshments were served by doll-like oriental maidens. The long tedious hours spent by the various committees in developing our prom made it a success. Our "Night In An Oriental Garden" was the

and echo the traditions of 150 years

most wonderful evening of our Junior year.

The English Department announced in the spring that Declamations would no longer be compulsory. About twenty of our classmates decided to prepare and present declamations and from them, several semi-finalists were chosen. The Finalists presented their Declamations on Class Day night at the annual contest held in Chapel. Linda Geddis was chosen by the judges as the winner.

The showery April atmosphere was brightened when the Junior Class turned to the stage and presented Curtain Going Up, a three act comedy about high school students putting on a play. With a record number of tickets sold, a wonderful play presented under Miss Garland's capable direction, and a delicious spaghetti dinner served at the play party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duston in Hampstead, the only way to describe the play was as a complete success. Not only did we boost our depleted treasury, but we also had an enjoyable time doing it. It was a fun-filled and satisfying way to bring our Junior year to a close.

Anxiously we returned to Pinkerton in September 1963 to claim our long awaited positions as Seniors. Our pure elation was enhanced even more by the addition of the new Alan Shepard Building and an almost fifty per cent larger faculty.

Autumn heralded the field hockey season. To compensate for losing the championship they had won the year before, the Senior girls challenged the Senior boys to a rollicking, action-filled hockey game. The boys made a valiant effort but were defeated, six to four.

We decided to hold our Corn Roast on a beautiful star-filled October night at Chase's Grove. After eating our barbecued meal under the tall pines, we went inside to dance. Even the faculty, some of whom twisted and danced with the students, had to agree it was a wonderful way to begin our Senior functions.

We gave our Christmas present to the underclassmen when early in December the Sophomore-Freshman reception was held in our new cafeteria. Perhaps it was the annual Christmas warmth, and perhaps it was just the warmth of friendships, but that night the divisions between classes seemed to melt, and a sort of fellowship emerged among students.

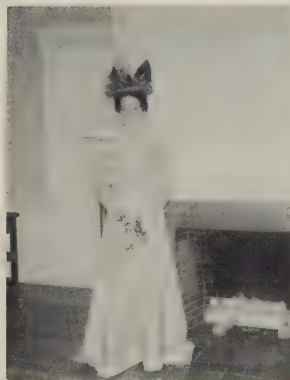

Like all the things the class of '64 attempted, our Senior Play, It Happens Every Summer, was a tremendous success. The new Art Department equipped us with a beautiful new set which increased the play's success. Miss Garland, the cast, and all the play committees were rewarded for all their hard work, because the class of '64 had again sold a record number of tickets. After the Saturday night performance, the cast and committees enjoyed a dinner served in the school cafeteria by shimmering candlelight.

The taking, choosing, and ordering of class pictures reminded us that our too-short-year as Seniors had almost ended.

Soon after, our various sizes and shapes, heights and widths, were measured for the caps and gowns we'd wear at Graduation.

June brought Baccalaureate and Class Day. The reading of our Class Will and Prophecy brought us to the realization that our year was nearly over. As we received our diplomas and said hurried good-bye's to the faculty and our classmates, each of us knew that our careers as Pinkerton students had ended.

The Class of 1964 has walked together around the campus and under the Tower for three wonderful years. Although our history has ended, the respect and devotion for Pinkerton lives on.

These projects, under the direction of Miss Beane, have included a tutoring service and the issuing of the Pinkerton Handbook. At the meetings, the members have had the opportunity to view slides and discuss college life with visiting alumni.

This year the Society has undertaken several new activities such as selling refreshments at home football games and conducting a book fair for the benefit of the students. Also a new tradition has been established in N.H.S., the formal induction of members which has added a new pride and meaning to membership in the Society.

LETTERMEN

The Lettermen are a prominent part of any school activity. They have also played an important part in keeping order at the basketball games and in the cafeteria. A boy may earn his letter by outstanding participation in a major sport, in band, or by maintaining at least a 90% average each year. We should all realize the importance of the Lettermen and give them the respect they deserve.

Mr. Hutchins

Eight majorettes accompanied the band in its colorful formations and snappy tunes. Using dance, shaker and baton routines, they added color and spirit to the football games.

The Pinkerton Academy band has had one of its busiest years. For the first time in Pinkerton's history, the band entertained fans during half time at our home football games. As the football season drew to a close, preparations for a busy Christmas season were made. The band showed its ability and delighted the audience with its arrangements of "Ring Christmas Bells" and "Jingle Bell Rhapsody." With a spring concert and Memorial Day parades, the band certainly has proved itself as an active and important part of Pinkerton Academy.

The Pinkerton Glee Club, always a popular school organization, continued as in previous years, to provide good music. This year's Glee Club has two hundred and eighty members, and under the supervision of Robert Hutchins, performed successfully at the Christmas and Spring concerts.

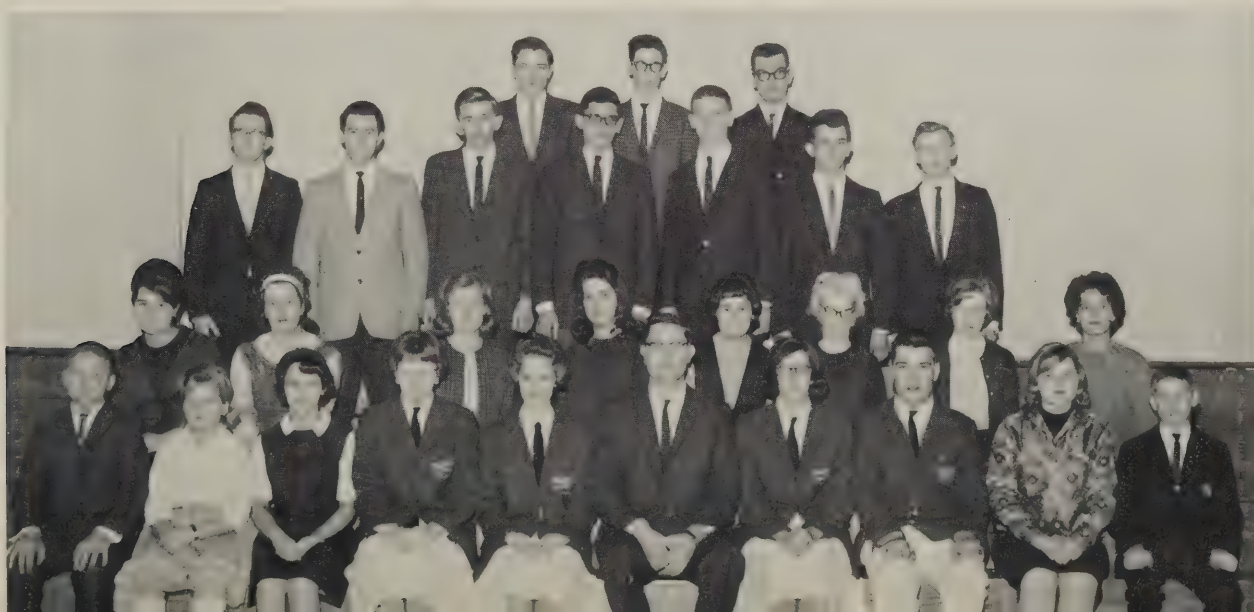

Chapel Choir, Pinkerton's more select singing group, performed challenging compositions with poise and skill.

Both vocal groups have given Pinkerton students an opportunity to work and to perform with their fellow students.

Curtain Going up

The Junior Play, Curtain Going Up, a three act comedy concerning high school students and their romantic developments while putting on a school play, was presented by the Class of '64 at Adams Memorial Hall on the evenings of April 18th and 20th, 1963. The many long hours of rehearsing by the cast under Miss Garland's capable direction, and weeks of preparation by sundry committees made our play a success. Because we topped our goal and sold a record number of tickets, the cast played to a near capacity crowd on both nights.

That's one way to straighten 'em out!

De we have to go over this AGAIN!

SENIOR PLAY

As a final Pinkerton production at Adams Memorial Hall, the class of 1964 presented "It Happens Every Summer" on December 12 and 14,

This delightful comedy centered around the escapades of a group of college students during their first trip to New York as guest editors of a fashion magazine.

The cast, under the direction of Miss Garland, rehearsed faithfully for four weeks while the Art Club and business staff busily performed the tasks of painting scenery and selling tickets. The true spirit and fight of the Class of 1964 was evident when a record breaking number of tickets were sold.

Following the Saturday night performance, the cast enjoyed a dinner party in the new cafeteria, prepared by some of the members of the cast. The party brought on an appropriate end to a memorable event in the career of the Class of 1964.

A NIGHT IN AN ORIENTAL GARDEN . . .

So glad you could come.

THE JUNIOR PROM

The charm of the Orient was brought to Derry by our class especially for the Junior Prom. Overnight the Grinnell Gym was transformed into an exquisite Eastern paradise.

Entering the softly lighted garden, we were escorted over a mist-shrouded mandarin bridge. As we glided around the room, we passed flower laden walls, a magic wishing well, and the rustic oriental countryside.

We were graciously served refreshments by two lovely Geisha girls in a beautifully decorated Oriental tea-room, adjacent to the garden. An extra touch of the fun of the East was added by delightful fortune cookies.

As our night passed into day, the magic touch of the Orient vanished. Then the Class of '64 realized that its Junior Prom was over, but the committees would not soon forget the planning, hard work, and enjoyment that had created the "Night In An Oriental Garden."

Take a bough, Marilyn.

Cheering Our Teams to Victory

Our sparkling cheerleaders in bright red uniforms were heard and admired at each football and basketball game as they cheered our teams on to victory. Hours of practicing traditional cheers and devising new ones proved rewarding as the vivacious girls succeeded in arousing school spirit and enthusiasm for which Pinkerton is noted. A new device—a frame through which our teams ran at game halves—was introduced this year as well as a short football skit for a last pep rally. Yes, we can be proud of our cheerleaders for maintaining tremendous school spirit.

ART AND AGRICULTURE . . .

The Art Club this year has been under the direction of the Academy's new art instructor, Miss Eleese Brown. Throughout the year the students enjoyed various projects and speakers, making their evenings well spent. The art club fulfilled its purpose of broadening the activities of art class and giving other students the opportunity to partake in artistic pursuits.

The Future Farmers of America is an integral part of the agricultural course being taught at the Academy. As a national organization, it teaches the boys interested in vocational agricultural, cooperation, leadership, improved farming methods, and citizenship.

Projects of interest to the group are planned for the meetings along with entertainment and recreation.

Although the athletic equipment and rules have changed somewhat since the first team took its place on the P. A. playing field, the enthusiasm that characterize the Pinkerton competitive spirit are ageless and enduring.

Get Hungry!

On a hot August 21, sixty boys reported to the Pinkerton field house. Under new Head Coach Hugh Johnson's direction, the boys were whipped into top physical condition.

The spirited Astronauts in their opener on September 14 were defeated 16-38 by a veteran Sanborn club.

In the next game Pinkerton held Winnacunnet to minus 27 yards in a magnificent defense game which ended in a 14-0 victory.

Strolling along together

On October 12, Pinkerton bounced back with a hard-fought victory 18-6 over the Blue Knights of Manchester West.

In mid October the Pinkerton Astronauts traveled to the doors of Dartmouth where they were defeated by an inspired Hanover team 14-0.

In the last game of the season, the Pinkerton eleven showed that the long hours of practice had paid off in a rousing victory over Bishop Brady, 22-8.

The blast off

Down the Courts . . .

The 1963-64 basketball season found Pinkerton playing in the newly formed Class I Division. Although the competition was keener than before, Pinkerton battled well into the top eight teams. The Pinkerton quintet, under the direction of Coach Paquette, ended the season with a 9-8 record and a berth in the Class I Tournament.

This year's team filled the Grinnell Gym with many exciting moments as most of the games ended in very close scores. The Alvirne game which was won 74-65 in a brilliantly played overtime, and the Sanborn game which was a 64-62 victory for the Pinkerton men are just a few of the memorable contests.

The high scorer was Captain Arthur Tssetsilas who, during the season, collected 318 total points for an average of 19.1 points per game.

Next year with the help of some of the more experienced J. V. players, and with better than half of the Varsity line-up returning, the outlook is bright for a winning season.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The 1963-1964 Girls' Basketball Team marked the season's end with one of the best records for many years, 12 wins and 1 loss.

The efforts of our coaches, Miss Cournoyer and Miss Brown, to make us successful basketball players were indeed rewarded. Both the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams showed their strength and great determination to win by their performances at the games. The games that will be remembered most are those against our all-time rival, Nashua, when the Varsity defeated them in two exciting encounters, and the come-back victory over Sanborn on our home court after losing our only game to them previously.

The season has ended but the vivid memories of all the games will remain with the girls who participated.

Personify Girls' Sports

FIELD HOCKEY

In our Sophomore year, an inexperienced group of eager enthusiasts succeeded in capturing the second place title.

The Junior year found the Mighty Class of '64 displaying our great ability and winning the trophy by overpowering all opponents.

However, our Senior year did not prove to be as successful but we played our best in the play-offs against the Juniors and came through with second place.

As the season drew to a close, the Senior boys challenged the girls to the traditional hockey game. The stronger sex proved weaker as we stormed to victory by a score of 6-4. The game was a riotous climax to end a competitive and spirited season of one of the most enjoyable sports at Pinkerton.

. . . Spring is Here

As soon as the weather permits, the boys begin conditioning themselves and rebuilding their endurance by "running the triangle." Then when the track is dry enough for use, they develop their separate skills still further and under the direction of the coaches, build a team which can give the opponents strong competition in the many meets Pinkerton has with other schools.

With spring comes baseball practice at the Oval. The boys put in many hours of hard work, perfecting their abilities and developing the teamwork so necessary for a winning season. The reward for their efforts comes when they win the important games and produce a record of which they can be proud.
